4-Mountain Ski Area Schladming

The heart of the ski region connects the four biggest ski mountains in Styria: the Hauser Kaibling, Planai, Hochwurzen, and Reiteralm. Making for a unique skiing experience with 123 kilometers of uninterrupted pistes literally right there at your feet. Add top-notch infrastructure and convivial après-ski “watering holes” – what more could any skier possible wish for?

Each ski area is unique in its own right, and when they join forces, they're simply unbeatable. On the Planai World Cup Hill, world champions battle it out for hundredths of a second. At Hauser Kaibling you can enjoy the distant view from the highest point of the ski area, the Hochwurzen transforms evening into day, and the Reiteralm's downhill run known as the „Finale Grande” definitely lives up to its billing.

At a Glance

- Top Piste Conditions from early winter until after Easter
- 123 kilometers of nonstop slopes
- 50 state-of-the-art lifts
- 16 mountain highlights
- 3 children's areas
- 7 ski schools
- With a valid ski pass, ride the ski bus for free within the Schladming 4-Mountain Ski Area

Skiing enjoyment for the whole family

As of winter 2025/26, heading off for a ski vacation with your kids will be easier than ever – because all children up to age 6 (born in 2020 or later) ski for free! This offer is valid on all mountains within the Schladming 4-Mountain Ski Area as well as the Rittisberg, Galsterberg, and Fageralm. The Dachstein Glacier cable car is also included.

Sledding fun?

Sledding the Right Way

- ① Wear waterproof shoes with good soles (firm and treaded), ski pants and jacket, gloves, helmet, and ski goggles. Pack a first-aid kit in your backpack and wear a headlamp for night sledding.
- ② To steer, press your heel firmly into the snow – the harder you press, the tighter the turn.
- ③ To brake, press both feet down into the snow next to the runners. On steeper terrain, lean back and pull up the front of the sled while braking with your feet. Adjust your speed to your personal ability.
- ④ Maintain a safe side distance when overtaking and call out to warn the person ahead of you.
- ⑤ Never stop below the crest of a hill or in a curve. Only walk up- or downhill along the edge of the sledding track.
- ⑥ Never ride head-first, don't tie sleds together, be considerate of others, and always render first aid in the event of an accident!
- ⑦ Always give some thought to your next sled ride: When you are done for the day, wipe the runners dry and even apply ski wax every now and then – it helps the sled glide better, and prevents rust. Before setting out, check that all screws are nice and tight.

HAVE LOTS OF FUN!

Nature experience?

Nature and you

Thorough tour planning is essential for a safe winter adventure. Prepare your tour in advance and choose marked trails.

Stay constantly informed about weather and snow conditions, since mountain weather can change rapidly. Avoid summits, ridges, and areas requiring use of safety cables during snowfall or storms.

Don't leave any trash behind. Take everything with you and dispose of it responsibly.

Respect wildlife protection areas, avoid feeding stations, and stick to marked trails. Keep clear of tree clusters above the tree line to protect black grouse. Avoid ridgelines during dawn and dusk, where chamois, ibex, and ptarmigan are particularly active. Keep dogs on a leash. Avoid young forests and reforestation areas.

Use environmentally friendly ski and valley bus services rather than driving. If you do need to drive, always use designated parking areas and avoid blocking access roads or paths.

You can find all schedules online:

Better safe than sorry

For mountain adventures, correct preparation is the be-all and end-all. You need to keep many things in mind, including having the right equipment, checking the current weather and avalanche conditions as well as good awareness for wildlife protection zones in the area. Our certified and expertly trained mountain & ski guides are always there for you and willing to accompany you on some of the most beautiful tours. Discover their program on pages 26 and 27. Overview of ski and mountain guides on page 54 and 55.

The slopes are open

Our ski mountains are open to everything. That said, as a ski tourer, you have the option to ascend the mountains on foot via certain groomed pistes and designated routes on ski mountains including the:

On the Ski Mountains

- Rittisberg
- Fageralm
- Hochwurzen
- Planai
- Galsterberg
- Riesneralm

Additional maintained touring routes

- Dachsteinwarte, Ramsau
- Brandalm, Ramsau
- Durch die Schlitten, Ramsau
- Michaelerberg, Pruggern

Please comply with designated times! Some tours are also possible in the evenings.

On certain mountains, a fee may be required for ascent and access. Detailed information about ski touring is available in our current brochure. Ahead of your tour, be sure to check the website of the mountain you will be skiing on for up-to-date conditions and other vital information.

Beware of avalanches!

You are personally responsible for choosing your route and accurately assessing your own experience, ability, as well as the risk of alpine hazards. Always check the current avalanche threat level before each tour at: lawine-steiermark.at

Avalanche warning level 1

Generally safe touring conditions with a stable snow cover. Avalanches possible only with significant overloads in extremely steep terrain and in isolated locations.

Avalanche warning level 2

Avalanches possible only with significant overloads. Snow cover on slopes steeper than 30° is only moderately stable. Avoid extremely steep slopes.

Avalanche warning level 3

The snow cover on many slopes is only minimally to moderately stable. Avalanches are possible on steep slopes even with minimal loads, and spontaneous medium to large avalanches may occur.

Avalanche warning level 4

Ski touring is not recommended! The snow cover on many mountainsides is very unstable. Avalanches may be triggered even under minimal loads, such as a single skier.

Avalanche warning level 5

Ski touring is not possible! The snow cover is extremely unstable. Large avalanches may occur even in only moderately steep terrain.

Thirst for Adventure?

Dachstein Glacier

UNESCO World Heritage Site

The newly modernized Dachstein mountain station impresses with its breathtaking backdrop and welcoming atmosphere, both in the Glacier Restaurant and the Sky Bar.

Around the lift station, an extraordinary glacier experience awaits: from the Sky Walk viewing platform, enjoy sweeping Alpine panoramas sure to take your breath away. Adventurous visitors can continue to a spectacular footbridge suspended high above the abyss. At the end lies the famous Stairway to Nothingness – fourteen glass steps leading out onto a floating platform at a truly dizzying height.

One special highlight for families and explorers of all ages is the Ice Palace: deep inside the glacier, a fascinating world of intricately sculpted ice and snow figures reveals itself. The experience culminates with the Dachstein Stairway to Heaven, offering a stunning view of the Dachstein and the surrounding glacial landscapes.

Enjoy vacation with peace of mind

With just a few conscious choices, you can make your stay in Schladming-Dachstein more eco-friendly without sacrificing comfort or fun.

1. Arrive by train: Our region is easy to reach, with 13 train stations – including three InterRegio stops in Schladming, Öblarn, and Stainach-Irdning. ÖBB’s luggage service will even deliver your gear directly to your accommodations.

2. Ride the bus to the slopes: Make use of the free ski buses and leave your car parked back at home.

3. Select sustainable accommodations: Stay at certified hotels, organic farms, or „Farm Holiday” establishments. Choose businesses that value regional products and social responsibility.

4. Enjoy local cuisine: Make a beeline for restaurants, such as the Schladming-Dachstein culinary partners, that offer regional and seasonal dishes.
5. Support direct marketers: Buy directly from local vendors and discover great local delicacies in the process.

6. Rent your equipment: Local sports shops offer a wide range of winter sports gear for you to rent.

7. Ski responsibly: Stick to marked slopes and respect the environment.

8. Discover alternatives: It doesn’t always have to be alpine skiing. Cross-country skiing, snowshoe hiking, and tobogganing are eco-friendly winter activities.

9. Avoid creating unnecessary waste: Stay away from single-use products, separate trash.
